Planning an Informative Speech

Teacher answer key

A. Speech order

C → B → D → A: opening, first point, second point, conclusion.

B-D. Planning guidance

Answers vary. Check a familiar topic, a clear audience and an informative purpose. The two points should be distinct and supported by accurate facts or examples. The visual should clarify the topic rather than display a paragraph of text.

E. Model outline

Topic: A measuring tape.
Audience: first-year vocational students.
Purpose: explain two points that help people communicate measurements clearly.
Opening: introduce the tool and purpose.
Point 1: identify the units and markings; show a labelled image.
Point 2: record the measured value with its unit; give an example such as “30 centimetres”.
Conclusion: identify the units and include them when reporting a measurement.

F-G. Observation checklist

Look for a clear opening, two supported points, useful signposts, a relevant visual, intelligible delivery and a conclusion. Feedback should name one observed strength and one specific improvement. In the replay, check whether that improvement is demonstrated.
The two-minute talk is a practice choice. Follow the PS course outline for formal speech requirements; no official marks are assigned here.

Lesson connection: Public Speaking Course Outline, June 2024, pp. 3-5; PS1, PS2 and PS6. Tasks and keys are original classroom practice. Accept equivalent correct responses where appropriate.